GLENDALE-MONTROSE TO DINE

All Employees to Be Banqueted As Guests of Company

ENDING GOOD YEAR

Superintendent Predicts Start on Electrification by January 1

While the Glendale-Montrose railroad is not out of the woods financially, according to its officials, it is celebrating this week the most prosperous year in its history with a banquet which will be served Thursday evening at 8, at the Broadway Inn to all the employees of the company as an expression of appreciation of their loyalty and disposition to promote the welfare of the road. To make it possible for all the motormen to be there, two who are not regular employees, but who are experienced men, have been engaged to operate the two cars which will be running while the dinner is in progress.

P. L. Hatch, the superintendent of the railroad, says he expects the company will have disposed of all red tape by January 1, and will then be ready to go ahead with the electrifying of its line between Glendale and Los Angeles, which will give it connections with the yellow car line.

DR. AND MRS. HOGUE HONOR MRS. ALLEN'S BIRTHDAY

Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Hogue of 329 North Jackson street entertained with a surprise dinner party at their home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in celebration of the 75th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Hogue's mother, Mrs. Addie Allen. The house was beautifully decorated in the Christmas colors of green and red. Mrs. Allen had received a large box of southern holly from her brother in North Carolina and a bouquet of this was at each guest's place. The dinner table was centered with a large birthday cake lighted with 75 candles and on which was a doll dressed as an old lady with grey hair. From the hand of the doll to Mrs. Allen's place were streamers. Mrs. Allen's children gave her a wrist watch for her birthday and she also received a number of other gifts, which were arranged around her plate.

A delicious goose dinner was served to the following: Mrs. Addie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Tuck of Burbank, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Luebbert, Misses Jean and Adelaide Luebbert of Los Angeles, Mrs. Alice Marmaduke and son Sanford of Los Angeles, Mrs. Betty Owen of Los Angeles, Mrs. Clara Linker and Misses Eula and Kyril Linker of Glendale, Dr. and Mrs. R. V. Hogue and son Benly of Glendale.

The party was a complete surprise to Mrs. Allen, who had been spending the day with Mrs. Linker. When she returned home she found the guests gathered together to assist in the celebration of her birthday anniversary.

MAIL PILOT IS LOST IN SNOW STORM

Airplanes of Service in West Begin Search in Utah

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Confirmation of all mail airplanes in the western division of the air mail service at Salt Lake City and Rock Springs was ordered today by Postmaster General Work to pilot for Henry G. Boonstra, mail pilot, who has been lost since last Friday, when he was overtaken by a heavy snow storm.

The service has been completely suspended in this division under instructions from Washington, while all pilots and planes, numbering 25, are scouting the country in an effort to find some trace of the missing flyer.

According to information received at the postoffice department, the storm in which Boonstra was caught lasted twenty hours, thus preventing any attempt to search for him until the weather had cleared. Agents at railroad stations, postmasters and amateur radio operators along the entire Salt Lake-Rock Springs route have been notified and are participating in the hunt.

SAN FERNANDO NIGHT AT ELKS THIS EVENING

Secretary Kimball reports there is every indication that the meeting of the Elks' lodge tonight will be one of the largest the organization has ever held. It will be "San Fernando night," when members from that section of the district will be special guests, and it is understood they have provided a surprise for the lodge which will make this an eventful Christmas to Glendale Elks.

SECONDARY TRADE MAY HELP LABOR

So Declares Secretary of Labor Davis, in Annual Report

SAYS MANY REASONS

Declares Labor Should Seek to Adjust Itself to Conditions

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Unemployment crisis that periodically afflicts the country are due not so much to actual dearth of employment as to the inability of American workmen to adjust themselves to changing circumstances, in the opinion of Secretary of Labor Davis, expressed in his annual report to congress.

American workmen, Davis suggested, hesitate to take up unfamiliar lines of work when depression hits their trades. "As a result there is constantly a considerable number of unemployed who are in that position for no other reason than that they will not take other kinds of work than offered. This number, Davis estimates, at normally one and a half million. When strikes or industrial disturbances hit labor, the total unemployed swells to the magnitude of a 'crisis'."

The remedy, according to Davis, is for every workman to embrace a secondary employment. Increased appropriations to enable the Federal Employment service to carry on an educational campaign for "secondary occupations" were asked of congress by Davis.

"I would be the last one to suggest that skilled craftsmen should undertake to become so-called 'Jacks of all Trades,' but I would urge upon every idle workman that when there is inactivity in his trade, he use every effort to adapt himself to some other line of work," Davis wrote.

"Manifestly the skilled workman can, if he will, do work of some other kind, but my experience is that too often when idleness is forced upon him he rejects the thought of other employment for one or more of several reasons.

"He may not be able to secure as high wages in other employment, and he may be under the impression that the secondary employment will lose him prestige in his primary occupation."

Davis urged that more attention be paid to the Federal employment service as a possible solution of the unemployment problem.

"We have two problems to meet," Davis wrote, "to prevent the recurrence of the employment depression of last year which threw five or six million men into idleness and to reduce the number of men who are daily without means of livelihood."

"The United States Employment service, as a national organization, keeps in touch with the general situation in every part of the country. Fully organized and equipped, it would have its fingers at all times upon the pulse of the labor supply and demand of the country. The past year this service, with its co-operating agencies, proved its effectiveness. It listed nearly 2,500,000 workers seeking employment and placed nearly 1,500,000 of them in jobs without expense to the worker or employer. Its usefulness and the need for its development are plain."

SCHOOL BUDGET COMMITTEE WORKS

With the schools closed this week not much news is developing about educational lines except that the budget committee of which Captain W. C. Wattle is chairman, which was appointed by the advisory committee, will meet Tuesday night at headquarters of the Board of Education to see what can be done in the estimated needs of city schools to bring them within the bonding capacity of the district. It will make its report to the full committee.

BAD HOLE UPSETS AUTO AT MAPLE ST

Gilbert Pitts Drives Into Cavity and Is Seriously Injured

TEETH KNOCKED OUT

Car Drops Without Warning and Turns Over on Two Occupants

Gilbert Pitts of 135 North Avenue 53, Los Angeles, was badly injured when the front wheel of an automobile in which he was riding dropped into a hole in the street at the corner of Maple and Sycamore at 6 o'clock Saturday night. Several of Pitts' teeth were knocked out and his face was badly cut. After being given medical treatment by a local physician, Mr. Pitts was removed to his home.

At the time of the accident, Mr. Pitts was riding in a machine with C. H. Oppenheimer of 4905 Meridian street, Los Angeles. As they were traveling along, the wheel of the car dropped without warning into the hole. The machine turned completely over. Oppenheimer was not injured in the accident, except for a good shaking up.

As to whether there were any warning lights around the hole at the time the accident occurred could not be learned at the Glendale city hall this morning, although the inquiry was made at practically all of the various departments.

$15,000 AUTO IS SHOWN AT COURT COMPANY

Nickel Plated, Cut Down Chassis of the New Cadillac

A special $15,000 nickel-plated, cut-down chassis of a Cadillac car will be on exhibition at the Court Motor company, 235 South Brand boulevard throughout Monday and Tuesday of this week. C. W. Bayless, an expert Cadillac demonstrator, who is territorial representative for the wholesale department of Don Lee of Los Angeles, Southern California distributor for the Cadillac, arrived in Glendale this morning and throughout the two days will be on hand to explain every feature of the "Cad." For the benefit of those who cannot attend the day-time sessions of this demonstration the Court Motor company will remain open until 10:30 o'clock on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The chassis, which has been cut so that every feature of the car and the workings of every part may be plainly seen, is identical to that used in connection with every car of this make sent out by the factory. Nothing has been added to make it unusually attractive for demonstrating purposes, except the finish that has been given to the different parts. In order that the interior workings of the various vital sections may be seen, electric lights have been placed within them.

This demonstration is being put on in order that the Cadillac owners in the valley may better learn the workings of their machines, and that those who are interested in the Cadillac may see just what they are buying before they make their purchases. There is nothing in connection with the "Cad" that must be covered up. It is a real automobile from one end to the other and the makers and dealers are more than anxious to demonstrate that fact.

In connection with the demonstration in which the chassis is used, there will be motion pictures, which were taken at the Cadillac factory. These will show how the various parts of the car are made and will add clearness as to the working parts and their particular functions in connection with actual operations.

TEACHERS JOIN ASSOCIATION

The State Teachers' Association of California, Southern Section, is receiving a nice little Christmas present from teachers in the Glendale city schools in the shape of a check for $324, representing the membership fees of 108 teachers in this city.

PATROLMEN RESIGN
The Glendale police force was depleted yesterday by the resignation of Officers Wurtz and Dawson. No reason for the officers resigning is given.

GLENDALE DAILY PRESS READERS VOTE AGAINST ANNEXATION BY PHONE

Some Admit They Were Interested in Propaganda, But Soon Saw Through the Proposition and Are Now Strongly in Favor of Home Rule

Readers of the Glendale Daily Press do not want annexation. Some of them admit they had given it favorable consideration, once—but now, it is "NO." And it is underscored.

Beginning today, the Glendale Daily Press will print the views of some of its readers, in a telephoned symposium, the first of its kind attempted in the city.

The subscribers of the Glendale Daily Press, now over 5000, all cannot be reached by phone. The Press would like to hear from them on annexation, in writing—or any other subject in which they are interested. There are a number of subjects in the public mind that should be discussed.

Here are some of our readers' opinions:

When asked this morning as to how they felt regarding annexation to Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Griffin of Alexander street, replied, "We are strictly and absolutely against it. It would be the ruin of Glendale. We have too much backbone to do such a thing. There is no yellow streak in us, so why join Los Angeles?"

"Oh, we don't want it. No, indeed, we don't want it." This is a statement made by Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hildreth of 217 Milford street, when asked how they felt regarding annexation to Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bunting, 1325 North Brand boulevard: "At first we felt quite favorable towards the consolidation of Glendale and Los Angeles, but since giving it more serious consideration and learning the facts we are opposed to annexation."

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Case, 343 North Maryland avenue: "We are not in favor of annexing Glendale to Los Angeles, unless we could be more assured of what the advantages would be."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Andree, 462 Pioneer drive: "We are opposed to annexing Glendale to Los Angeles, as we cannot see whereby Glendale would be benefited. The problem of a sewerage system is vital, but we do not believe this would be solved by Glendale annexing to Los Angeles."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Garner, 600 North Louise street: "We are not in favor of annexation, as we cannot see whereby Glendale would be benefited by such a move. Undoubtedly, in case of annexation, Glendale would have to wait for a long time for street and other improvements. Glendale would also lose her identity."

Mrs. John Camphouse, 217 East Maple street: "I do not see where there would be anything gained by annexing Glendale to Los Angeles."

Mark Russell, 1007 South Central avenue: "I do not see why there is any controversy about annexing to Los Angeles. If we can get plenty of water and a satisfactory sewerage system without annexing, I do not see why we should go in. If that is the only way they can be obtained, of course everyone would be in favor of it. I see no reason for talking about annexation until we find out if we can get sewers."

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hill of 519 North Louise street stated, when asked for their expression on annexation: "We do not believe in it. We do not think it would be at all beneficial to Glendale."

When asked how they felt about annexation to Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw said: "We are against it, and for many reasons. We don't feel that we would gain anything by joining them. They will not make any promises." Mrs. Hearnshaw said that eight or nine years ago she was in favor of it, but not at the present time.

GOBS SAVE 482 IN CHINESE REVOLT IS HOSPITAL SHIP WRECK PREDICTED BY BANKER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—Prediction of the speedy overthrow of the Chinese central government under General Wu Pei Fu was yesterday made by Galen D. Litchfield, banker of Hankow, China, who is visiting San Francisco on a combined pleasure and business tour of the United States.

The combined memberships, according to present plans, will be known as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

A joint committee of both unions opened its sessions here today to devise methods by which the insurance and assets of the organizations can be successfully merged.

J. B. JOHNSON STRUCK BY CAR
J. B. Johnson of 1133 South San Fernando road was struck by an automobile at the corner of San Antonio and Cypress at 6:45 o'clock Saturday night. An ambulance from the Jewish City Undertaking parlors took the injured man to the Glendale sanitarium, where medical treatment was administered. This morning Mr. Johnson, whose injuries are not serious, was resting as easily as could be expected.

He had just left China, he said, "Sun Yat San who recently set up his own government at Canton, was later driven into hiding, had joined forces with rebel movements in Manchuria and was organizing a large army in the province of Fu Kien with the single purpose of attacking the government forces at Peking. It is my opinion that this movement will prove successful when it is put into operation, in view of the fact that Wu Pei Fu's army is in demoralized condition."

"This is due in great part to the fact that the pay of the government's soldiers is in arrears. They are only paid about $4 a month, but the men have not been paid for so long that they have fallen into the habit of robbing Chinese banks. They take great care, however, not to touch any of the banks operated by foreigners, as that immediately means complications."

CHRISTMAS MAIL IS RUSHED BY P. E. SPECIAL

Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson had a test of the advantages of an independent postoffice Saturday night when he learned that the regular P. E. service would be unable to handle the accumulation of Christmas packages. At once he got the traffic manager of the Pacific Electric by telephone, explaining the predicament; the traffic manager responded at once by offering a special car attached to the 9 o'clock train into which all the mail was dumped, thus saving at least 48 hours' time. Had the Glendale office been a branch of Los Angeles, that time saving might not have been effected because of the red tape it would have been necessary to unwind, Mr. Jackson says.

There is time saving in another way, he pointed out, and that is in the dispatch of mail direct from this office instead of sending it through the Los Angeles service to be delayed by the congestion there. The postmaster says the new terminal station at the high school is working out fine and under the system planned for the holidays prompt service is being given the patrons of the office in spite of the fact that the majority have not heeded the appeals to mail their Christmas packages early.

He finds, he says, that even postoffice employees have their human weaknesses as they were putting holiday packages of their own into the mail this morning.

AMALGAMATION OF RAIL BROTHERS IS PROPOSED

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18.—Plans were started today for amalgamation of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, two of the big transportation unions.

The combined memberships, according to present plans, will be known as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

A joint committee of both unions opened its sessions here today to devise methods by which the insurance and assets of the organizations can be successfully merged.

FERRY ACROSS CITY STREET IS PLEA TO COUNCIL

(FILED IN ADVANCE OF ANNEXATION)

Application for a permit to operate a ferry boat "on the lake" at Figueroa street and Manchester avenue was made to the city Council Saturday by S. H. Weaver, 552 West Eighty-seventh street.

"This boat is very badly needed when it rains, and I could make a nice profit by charging 10 or 15 cents toll," Weaver wrote.

While no action was taken toward granting the request, the council instructed the city engineer to investigate conditions with a view to giving flood relief in that district.

WOULD REACT HERE

Rail Commission Declares Must Be Compensation for Toll Reductions

The committee on committees appointed at the last session of the directors of Chamber of Commerce meets tonight and will present its report at the Tuesday noon luncheon of directors.

Secretary Rhoades says he thinks it unlikely the Chamber will make any effort to promote a movement to secure through the Railroad Commission a reduction in the telephone tolls or in the price of phones in Glendale for the reason that merchants and subscribers are largely opposed to it after hearing the arguments of the commission against it. Commission members assured Glendale representatives that the removal of the toll to Los Angeles would be followed by the raising of the cost of private phones here to the Los Angeles level which would be a hardship to many telephone users.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Automobiles operated by Harry E. Broad of 420 West Oak street, and C. Hurst of Los Angeles, collided on Glendale avenue at 9:45 o'clock Saturday evening. Little damage was done.

C. E. Lane of Long Beach, and P. E. Palmer of La Crescenta, were drivers of cars that collided at the corner of Central and Cypress at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. No one was injured.

WOMAN KITES BAD CHECKS IN THE CITY

Cleans Up $330 in Ten Dollar Lots and Disappears

HAD MADONNA FACE

With Babe in Arms She Loots Cash Drawers on Her Looks

Speaking of check kiting, Secretary Pilling of the Merchants' Credit association, says the "eternal feminine" certainly put it over on Glendale business men when "Mrs. J. W. Uning" or some impersonator, succeeded in cashing eleven $30 checks between 3 p. m. and 5 o'clock, recently, and then disappeared into the void, leaving no trace. She was a pretty, appealing young woman, with a Madonna face and in her arms she carried a baby. The chivalry of every man approached responded and her story was unquestioned until the checks were returned. Mr. Pilling is thinking of collecting them and framing them for the headquarters of the association, as a reminder of the wiles of women. "In each case she stole a small purchase, tendered the check and then asked to have the balance in cash. It is estimated she was ahead an even $330."

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR ROSE FLOAT ARE NEEDED

Civic Organizations Reminded Time Short to Finance Exhibit

Civic organizations in Glendale are being reminded of the Glendale float, the entry at Pasadena on New Year's day being dependent on enough money to finance it. The money has always been forthcoming, but the time is getting short. The city council and the chamber of commerce have each pledged $250 if an additional $250 is raised by Glendale organizations. The Elks have contributed $50 and the Kiwanis club has pledged $25, and it is expected others will take similar action this week.

Mr. Choban has been engaged to design and execute the float, as he has made a great success of the job in the past, and promises something very fine this year.

The last two named serve one year, all others six months' term. Appointment of remaining officers will occur at the time of installation of officers in January, 1923.

Burbank Rebekah lodge will be honored by a visit from the president of the Rebekah assembly (the highest officer in the state) Mrs. Mary V. Pierce of Los Angeles, who was present at the institution of Burbank lodge on February 16, 1922, and ably assisted Mrs. Clancy, now past president.

LAKE TUG GOES DOWN WITH ALL ON BOARD

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 18.—The three lifeboats which carried the 27 passengers and members of the crew of the tug Reliance, after that vessel hit the rocks near Lizard Island on the north shore of Lake Superior, Wednesday, were found capsized today.

They were badly battered and caked with ice.

The boats were picked up by a rescue party aboard the tug Gray, which set out for the islands shortly after midnight. No clues as to the whereabouts of the missing men were found and it is thought they were drowned.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 18.—Twenty-seven men, passengers and members of the crew of the tug Reliance, wrecked last Wednesday have lost their lives in the icy waters of Lake Superior, mariners here believed today.

The men declared it is doubtful if the sailors could have survived the snow storm and gale that swept the lake yesterday and last night. If they did find shelter, they are without food, it is said, and under present weather conditions it is impossible for help to reach them within two days.

It is believed the men are on the barren Lizard Island, off the North Ontario mainland.

Nine members of the crew reached here late yesterday after a desperate struggle through a blinding snow storm. Four of them have been removed to a local hospital, suffering from exhaustion.

BROADWAY M. E. (SOUTH) HAS BIG ATTENDANCE

The Broadway Methodist church, South, at Broadway and Cedar, had a banner attendance at their first service after opening Sunday.

Others were received into the church, one very bright young man coming in on profession of faith in Christ. Since this membership is growing from the very beginning, the pastor is very hopeful now of 100 members by or before Easter, which number will complete the charter membership of this new organization.

This new congregation is to be congratulated on securing as choir director and leader, Mrs. Eva Kurz, Christ, A. B., A. O. G., a graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music and who was previously head of the piano and organ department. She is just home from a year's study in Europe.

Mrs. Christ will give a piano production at the service on next Sunday at 2 p. m. Miss Mathilda Rohr, the Swiss contralto, will sing "Holy Night," and "Glory to Heaven Eternal King," the first by Gruber and the second by Myer Hummel. The pastor preaches on the "Virgin Birth."

AS TO PSYCHOANALYSIS

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

From the many inquiries that come to me there evidently is a general belief that psychoanalysis as a method of treating functional nervous and mental disorders is equally applicable to all types of patients. Responsibility for this gravely erroneous belief must be shared by "quack" psychoanalysts and poorly informed writers on the subject.

Actually, helpful as psychoanalysis is in many cases, there are victims of nervousness for whom it can do little or nothing. This has always been appreciated by the chief workers in this field of mental medicine. Thus some years ago Dr. I. H. Coriat of Boston, one of America's pioneer psychoanalysts, issued the warning:

"Psychoanalysis should not be used in delirious states, in persons over fifty years of age, since their nervous systems lack a certain plasticity, in cases of acute hysteria, or in severe mental disorders."

Not only are the nervous systems of persons over fifty usually lacking in sufficient "plasticity" to make them responsive to psychoanalysis, but because of the basic principles of psychoanalysis itself its applicability as a means of dealing with nervous troubles becomes increasingly difficult as the age of patients rises.

All functional nervous and mental maladies, psychoanalysis holds, have their roots in "forgotten memories," commonly memories relating to painful experiences of early childhood. As years pass and experiences accumulate, other "forgotten memories" are overlaid on these earlier ones, which sink still more deeply into the subconscious. In order to get at them it obviously is necessary first to unearth and recall the later memories.

And, just as obviously, the more memories there are to be unearthed, the longer and more difficult will be the psychoanalyst's task. Also, because of the decreased "plasticity" of the fifties and sixties, the intelligent co-operation of the patient, indispensable to a successful analysis, will be less easy to obtain.

This same reason—the necessity for intelligent co-operation—would alone be sufficient to exclude from psychoanalysis the delirious, the acutely hysterical, and the insane. Also it excludes the feeble-minded and persons of a sadly limited education.

Fortunately this does not mean that the excluded must despair of ever being cured.

Psychoanalysis, as I have frequently pointed out elsewhere, is only one among several methods of combating nervous and mental disease. There are many patients whose "complexes" are so loosely rooted that a mere suggestion of health, given under favorable circumstances, may be enough to restore them to health.

In fact, the one type of functionally nervous patient for whom nothing will avail—neither psychoanalysis nor anything else—is the patient who at heart does not wish to get well. Such patients, however much they may lament their nervousness, oppose to the best efforts of medical science a resistance that is quite invincible unless and until by some means a sincere desire for health is created in them.

And, unbelievable though it may seem, there are not a few such patients. Their nervous invalidism confers on them some real or fancied advantage—freedom from work, for instance—which they are reluctant to yield. So they run about from doctor to doctor, clinging to old symptoms or perpetually developing new ones.

In so doing they are honest enough. It is not a question of make-believe. They no less than the curably nervous are influenced by a subconscious factor. Only in their case it is a factor making for a veritable incurability.

REV. BROOKS TELLS OF FOURTH CHAP- TER OF JOHN

Discussing the fourth chapter of John, the Rev. Keith Brooks spoke to the men's Bible class at the city hall, Sunday, as follows:

"In the fourth chapter of John's Epistle we find another of those contrasts for which he is famous. He has contrasted light and darkness, love and hate, the love of the Father and the love of the world, the true Christ and the anti-christ, the children of God and the children of the devil, and now he contrasts truth and error. Hereby know we the spirit of truth and the spirit of error. Into these two classes John divides all religious statements. There is usually a medium between all things but there is no medium between the truth of God and the errors of Satan. Religious teachings that are a mixture of truth and error are the very worst forms of poison. It has always been the devil's business to dress up error in the garb of truth and so lead many astray."

"John begins this chapter by warning against the false prophets that are gone into the world. These are not necessarily men who are professed opponents of the Gospel, but men who profess to accept Christianity in a sense and then give it a wrong interpretation. Prophecy indicates that in the last days of this age there will be intensified apostasy as the result of false religious teachers. Near the end of the age, the prince of deceivers calls forth all his treacherous cunning to work upon even the very elect. Therefore John says, 'Believe not every spirit but try the spirits whether they are of God.' We are to bring religious statements to the one standard of truth. We are to receive nothing that does not conform to it, by whomsoever advanced, whatever the antiquity of the teaching, whatever the authority behind it. Whatever is out of harmony with or supersedes the New Testament teachings is untrustworthy."

"John proceeds to give us several tests by which we may know how to classify religious statements. 'Every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God and is that spirit of antichrist.' The true teacher must believe and confess the historic and permanent reality of the incarnation of the Son of God. In these days it is necessary to pin some teachers down as to what they mean. They may profess to believe in the divinity of Christ, yet be like one teacher who recently said that he would no more doubt the divinity of Christ than he would doubt his own. They may talk about the atonement, yet in the next breath speak of a soldier on the battlefield atoning for his soul as Christ died upon the cross. They may speak of resurrection, yet in the next breath say that men are always rising from the dead. They may confess their belief in the second coming of Christ and then point out that He has already come in our advanced civilization. Hence we see the need of sticking to clear Scripture definitions. If a man does not believe that God was manifest in the flesh in the person of Jesus Christ, he is a false prophet however sweet his manners may be."

"John's second test is in the 5th verse. To whom does their teaching appeal? If they are of the world the world will hear them. It is no sign a man is of God because he has a crowd. The real test of a true teacher may lie far away from the crowd. The success of false teachings in the last days is foretold in the New Testament."

"Another test is in the seventh verse. Are the teachers filled with the love of God? The love of God in the human heart cannot be counterfeited. It springs out of loving relations with God. It is the fruit of the Holy Spirit. A man without this inward fountain, a heart that broods over the world in some measure like the heart of God, is without the chief feature of the great family likeness. This divine love is a distinguishing characteristic of God's true representatives."

"Another test is, does the teaching acknowledge Jesus as an atoning Saviour? 'He sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins.' Christ became incarnate, suffered and died for nothing else than to make propitiation for our sins. Jesus did not die to make God love men but because He did love men. God's love and the propitiatory work of the cross are not antagonistic."

"Another test is proposed in the words, 'Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in Him.' Not only must the true humanity of Christ be acknowledged, but also His essential deity. Christ was such a man that He could not have been a mere man. He was all that He claimed or the worst of impostors. If He was what He claimed, then the lowly Jesus, cradled in the manger, despised of men, homeless stranger, rejected and crucified, was God in human flesh."

"It is not necessary that we should make extensive study of every religious cult. If we put them to some of the simple tests that John proposes we need go no further. To study error for the sake of refuting it, someone has said, is like marrying a bad woman to reform her. You might have something on your hands that you could not get rid of. The experts in the United States treasury, who count the bills, never fail to detect a counterfeit for the reason that they are so well acquainted with the genuine. If Christians would get acquainted with these great vital doctrines of the faith, when error is given they would instantly recognize it."

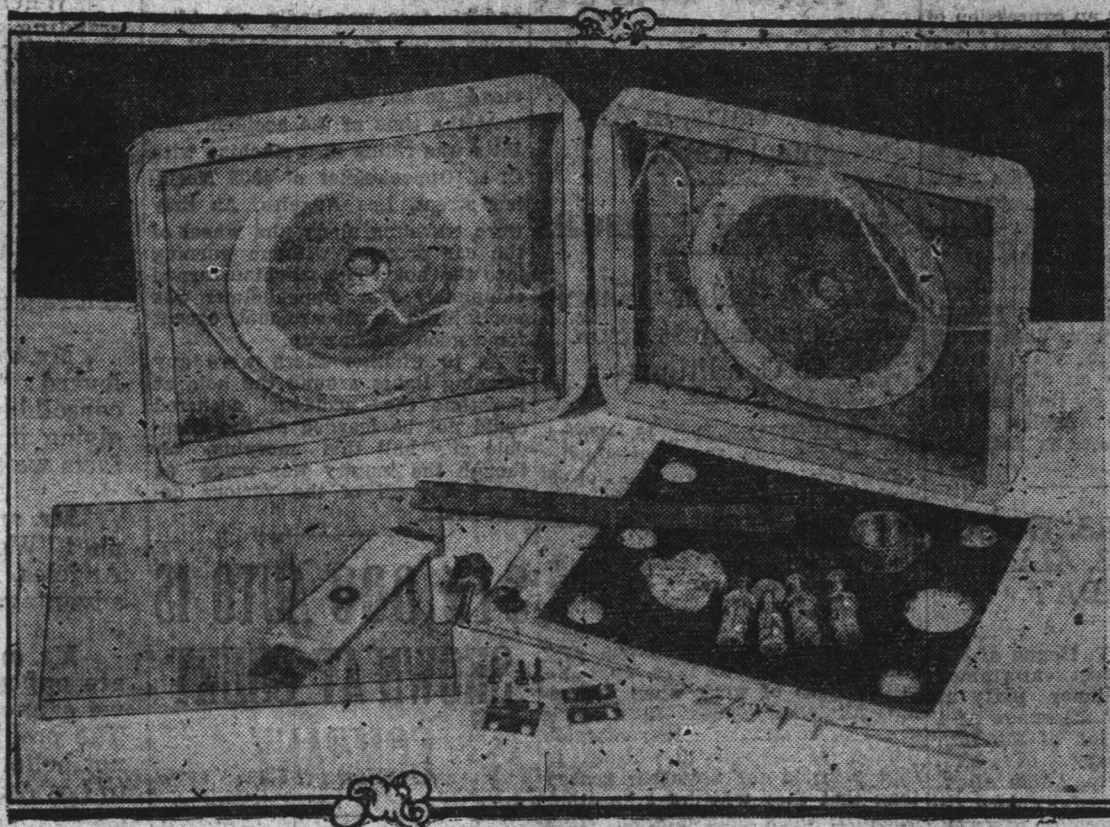

The teacher was angry when Thomas appeared ten minutes late for school one morning. "Why are you late, Tommy?" he said sharply. "Please, sir," replied the sinner, "it was late when I started from home." "Then why didn't you start from home earlier?" "Please, sir, it was too late to start early."

DAMAGED

MASKED MEN ROB CAR AT DENVER MINT

Shoot Guard and Escape
With $100,000 in Currency

FLEE IN AUTOMOBILE

Most Daring Robbery in History Takes Place in Early Morning

DENVER, Dec. 18.—Seven masked bandits today killed one of the guards at the United States mint here, wounded the driver of a Federal Reserve bank automobile, and escaped in an automobile with currency totalling $200,000.

The bandits drew up in front of the mint in a closed car just as the bank automobile, which had been loaded with currency, started away. One of the bandits commanded the driver of the car to stop. The others, covering the driver and the guard with shot guns, transferred the money to their own car.

Guards at the mint, armed with rifles and shot guns, opened fire on the bandit car. The fire was returned, one of the guards being instantly killed and the driver of the bank car seriously wounded. The bandits stood on the curb and laid down a terrible barrage on the door of the mint.

Employees of the mint shot at the bandits from windows and doors. The hail of bullets from the bandits' guns riddled the front of the mint and broke nearly every window in one side of the building.

Scores of pedestrians and motorists, attracted by the shooting, watched the bandits as they leaped in their car and sped away. The license number of the car was obtained and police immediately started a city-wide search for the automobile.

Police reserves were rushed to the scene and kept all persons away from the mint. The robbery was the most daring in Denver's history. The bandits apparently had planned the holdup carefully and their action was timed so that when the bank car started away, the bandit automobile crowded it into the curb and the robbery was staged.

The bandits, with handkerchiefs covering their faces, stopped the car in front of the mint and held the driver and guard. The bandits seized $100,000 in currency, leaped into a large touring car which had the curtains closed and sped away.

One of the mint guards opened fire and riddled the federal reserve car which he believed contained the robbers. The fire was returned by the bandits and one of the guards of the federal reserve car who had been forced to abandon the car, was shot and probably fatally wounded.

The license number of the car was obtained and police immediately threw out a dragnet for the trio. The car had just been loaded at the mint when the bandits drew up in their automobile.

The daring holdup and gun battle was witnessed by scores of passersby. The door of the mint was riddled with bullets.

The money was in five dollar bills and was being taken to the Federal Reserve bank.

As soon as the gun battle started guards on duty at the mint rushed to the front door and opened fire.

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

The federal reserve system undoubtedly should be given large credit for preventing a money panic during the last two or three years. By lending through the discount system, to its member banks, a large portion of the financial needs of the country were taken care of. Often, when money runs low in one federal reserve bank, that bank sends its paper for discount to another federal reserve bank in a different section of the country where money is more plentiful.

A federal reserve bank has the power to issue currency. Each one of these banks is required by law to set aside security, dollar for dollar, against the notes it issues. This security may be either gold, or borrowers' paper very shortly to be paid, representing either loans for the production or distribution of goods and farm products, or loans to holders of United States government securities. The gold which the law requires a federal reserve bank to maintain as a reserve against its notes must always be at least 40 per cent of the amount of its notes in circulation.

Each federal reserve bank has its own stockholders, directors, officers, and clerks, like other banking institutions. The stockholders are the member banks. Its nine directors are residents of the district, three appointed by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington, the other six elected by the bank, each having one vote. In voting the member banks are divided into three groups, each of which elects two directors, one group representing the smallest banks, one the middle-sized banks, and one the largest banks.

PARK AVENUE PHARMACY
HAS SPLENDID ARRAY

One of the most splendid arrays of Christmas gifts in town will be found at the Park Avenue Pharmacy, corner of Park avenue and Brand boulevard. Things so appropriate and yet never before thought of, are seen here and truly the prices are within the reach of all.

At this time of year, they have an especially attractive display of toilet sets, containing perfume, face powder, rouge, toilet water, and other necessities for millady's boudoir, in the pleasing odors made by Dior Kiss, Coty's, Colgate's, Houbigant's, Huddell's, and many others. These are always acceptable gifts, either in sets or the powder, perfume or toilet water alone. They come in attractive satin lined boxes.

And, of course, stationery—of a good variety, is always welcome and you will find here White and Wyckoff's, which is considered the very best. Some people prefer white, but for the Miss who likes a tinted paper, there are many delicate shades to choose from.

Everyone has more or less of a "sweet tooth" around Christmas time, and this can be satisfied with a lovely box of candy, made by Whitman, Johnson or Lelhy for there are many styles and sizes to be found at Park Avenue Pharmacy. Someone will be delighted with the miniature chest filled to the brim with goodies. It contains about five or six pounds and would make a wonderful gift. Mr. Brown, proprietor, also carries a splendid line of fountain pens, kodaks, photograph albums, greeting cards, ivory pyramids, and other useful suggestions for this season of the year.

A colonel requiring a man servant inserted an advertisement in that effect in the local newspaper. Shortly afterward an applicant called.

"What I want," said the colonel, "is a useful man—one who can cook, wait, drive a motor car, look after a pair of horses, clean boots and windows, feed the poultry, milk a cow, make butter and do a bit of painting and paperhanging."

"Excuse me, sir," said the applicant, "what kind of soil 'ave ye round here?"

"Soil!" rapped the colonel, "what's that to do with it?"

"Well," replied the other, "I thought if the soil was clay I might make bricks in my spare time."

All men are born free and equal; then their equality takes a vacation until the undertaker comes.

COMEBACKS, AS WELL AS BUSTS, IN 1922

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—While the closing year of 1922 will be remembered long as a year of upsets and go-backs, it was also a year of some comebacks.

Many kings of sports became ex-kings and quite a few former leaders in their line came back to the top.

Comebacks are always more interesting because they are so few. It's easy to drop out of the race but it's hard to get back in.

Willie Hoppe, who had reigned from the time he could reach the table until late in 1921 as the king of billiards, came back and his return to the throne was the most popular accession of the year.

Hoppe was defeated last year by Jake Schaeffer and in coming back as the champion this year he removed all doubts as to his ability by finishing first in a field of six of the world's best players.

Perhaps he isn't as great as he once was. Certainly he is not the sure, confident artist of years ago, but still he is the greatest player of them all.

Jack Scott, the big North Carolina farmer, was the most remarkable comeback of the baseball year. Scott was slid out of the National League and headed for the scrap heap on the assumption that he had a bad arm.

He worked the arm back in condition, got a berth with the New York Giants, won eight games for them and was one of the stars of the world's best team.

"Red" Russell, the old pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, was another notable comeback. The Rebel discovered he could bat and catch flies and he came back as a sensation in the outfield with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

One could talk of Ty Cobb's great comeback if he had ever gone back. Looks like he never will go back.

Mike O'Dowd gave the ring a notable comeback when he came into part ownership of the middleweight championship by winning from Dave Rosenberg. The New York boxing commission recognized Rosenberg as the champion and it now regards the St. Paul happy and ex-champion as the titleholder.

O'Dowd's comeback may help to clarify the situation caused by the suspension of Johnny Wilson. Wilson, it will be recalled, once said: "It may be a cheese champion and an awful fighter, but there is one bird that I can lick and that's O'Dowd." Wilson did it twice and he may do it again. It wouldn't be a surprise to see him go after O'Dowd.

Joe Lynch also pulled a comeback by regaining the world's bantamweight championship.

If her downfall at Forest Hills in 1921 could be taken as a "go back," Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis star and world's woman champion, was also a comeback. She gave Mrs. Molla Malory, the American champion, a terrible trimming in the British championships and established herself again as the greatest of all women players.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—Eugene Criegut, featherweight champion of Europe, today was signed to meet Johnny Kilbane, world's featherweight champion, next Decoration day in New York City, his manager announced.

IT IS TRUE
That 100,000,000 books are published in the United States every year.

That about $19,000,000,000 is owed the United States by the power associated with this country during the recent war.

That the Cable act, recently signed by President Harding, provides that all women are hereafter required to get or retain United States citizenship independently of their husbands. An American-born woman retains her American citizenship if she marries an alien eligible for citizenship, unless she makes formal renunciation of it before a court with jurisdiction over naturalized aliens. If she lives continuously for two years during her marriage in her husband's country, or five years outside the United States, she is subject to the condition of having given up her citizenship. An American woman who has lost her citizenship under the former law can regain it by only one year's residence in this country. A foreign-born woman can no longer obtain citizenship through marriage to an American citizen or through the naturalization of her husband. However, she has to make no declaration of intention, nor is any certificate of arrival required if she has lived in the United States during the continuance of the marriage status.

"After the crash," said the first hospitalurgeon to the second, "I ran over to where it lay on the pavement, and when I raised it up I saw at once that its ribs were smashed, while a gaping hole was torn in its—"

"Pardon me, doctor," broke in a medical student who happened to pass at that moment, "but if you have no objection I'd like to take a few notes on that accident case."

He pulled his notebook from his pocket.

"Yes, the case I mean, or a woman," he inquired.

"No," the surgeon informed him; "I was talking about my umbrella."

Truths in Epigram

The power of man's virtue should not be measured by his special efforts, but by his ordinary doing.—Pascal.

Cheerfulness is just as natural to the heart of a man in strong health as color is to his cheek.—Ruskin.

Do the duty which lies nearest thee, which thou knowest to be a duty. Thy second duty will already have become clearer.

A VENERABLE TRIO

At an alumni banquet scheduled for an early date the presence of three remarkable men is expected. One of these is Cornelius Cole, aged 100; the second, Lewis P. Reed, aged 99, and then follows Charles E. Harwood, who while only 92, would in almost any other gathering seem venerable. Each of the three is an alumnus. Mr. Harwood was graduate from Williams college in 1852. Ex-Senator Cole was a graduate of Wesleyan university with the class of 1847. Mr. Reed's graduation at New York university was a member of the class of 1843. If there is an older alumnus in southern California, track of him has been lost. These three all were Greek letter men.

A letter from Mr. Reed remarks that "a person past 92 years of age should cut out this jamboree and high jinks stuff." He implies that he does not like to be exhibited as an antique anyhow. He says his presence will depend on how he feels the date of the function. "Some days I am short on pep," he adds quaintly.

The most remarkable thing about the trio of men is that each is strong in mind and body, has business to attend to, and the ability to attend to it. Mr. Harwood, for example, serves as vice-president of a large oil concern, while recently Mr. Cole appeared in court as lawyer in an important civil action brought by himself.

PROTECTING CHILDREN

Senator Lodge has introduced a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment giving congress the power to regulate the employment of women, and of children under eighteen years of age. So far as this pertains to the welfare of boys and girls, almost any member of the senate would have been glad to introduce it. It expresses a sentiment almost unanimous in that body. Similar expressions in some form already had been suggested by a number of senators. The fact seems to be established that the great evils involved in child labor cannot be reached in any other manner. The constant conflict between the legislative power of the several states, and that of the government, comes into evidence the instant a general child labor law is submitted to judicial scrutiny. By adopting the amendment favored in the Lodge resolution, there could be no further conflict of authority.

So far as the resolution concerns the employment of women, it is probable that objections will be named by the women themselves. In their desire for absolute equality, they might deem it poor policy to seek the benefit of special laws. Local conditions vary so widely that a wage and an environment that would be satisfactory at one place would in another section of the country be wholly unacceptable. But the status of child labor is on a different plane.

The protection of the child is the great object sought. Perhaps it were well to make the issue clear and permit it to stand on its own merits.

AN UNPARALLELED BENEFACTION

The Huntington foundation, with its unprecedented equipment and its liberal endowment, constitutes a gift so beneficent that its parallel is not to be found. Owing to the methods of Mr. Huntington, as gathered the treasures that he had intended all the time to make over to public use, duplication of his generosity, however closely his ideals be imitated in spirit, could not be possible in material fact. There are works of art unique in value and beauty. There are rare books, each representing the expenditure of a fortune. There are manuscripts for which expert collectors had ransacked the secret places of Europe. All of this is housed magnificently, in a domain made splendid by nature and the skill of cunning artificers.

In the deed of gift the property is described as "a free public library, art gallery and park." It conveys to the trustees pictures, tapestries, bronzes and libraries purchased abroad. All of this, the land, the building, the priceless content, is for the public in perpetuity.

This magnificent largess is consummated while the donor survives. It does not wait until he has passed on, but there falls to him the privilege, and it must be a happiness also, of seeing how appreciative people are of his splendid thought and its visible expression. To place a monetary value on the Huntington foundation would be impossible. It runs speedily far into the millions, and soon reaches a point at which figures are inadequate. It is above measurement in terms of money, just as its educational influence must be deemed beyond all reckoning.

By the act of Mr. Huntington, southern California is made an art and literary center. It will be the mecca of scholars from all over the world. Here they may study that which will be available in no other place. Mr. Huntington is to be congratulated as well as gratefully and sincerely thanked. Without striving to do so, he has bidden an unequalled monument, and he has perpetuated the memory of noble achievement.

The Huntington foundation is destined to be the source of cultural inspiration. It cannot but give tone to the intellectual activities of the community. It will, but this is incidental, send afar the fame of the region which has been the scene of the founder's business career, and which now profits so richly because of the great heart and mind of the man.

DOING THINGS GRACEFULLY

The State has begun condemnation proceedings against the Rindge estate. Involved in the action is a strip of land eighty feet in width and twenty-one miles long, running through the Malibu ranch. It is needed for an important road that will serve a large section. For years the representatives of the Rindge estate had opposed every move towards construction of the necessary and inevitable highway. They might have known, indeed, they must have known, that in the end they would have to yield. Admitting the fact, they could have conceded cheerfully and thus have earned the gratitude of the public. They chose to inaugurate and sustain an expensive and wholly futile struggle. The patience of the public has been sorely tried, and the litigious estate is recognized as the cause of delay and costs. Now the road will be built despite protest, and the public care nothing as to whether the work damages the property.

Probably the time is not far distant when there no longer will be occasion to seek access to any private property large enough to yield a twenty-one mile strip of any width. The day when a ranch of such size accords with the general benefit seems to be passing. The region is getting too populous to permit the indefinite existence of vast unpopulated areas. Doubtless the future is to behold the Malibu ranch, not as the isolated holding of a small group of individuals, but the site of homes for thousands. Litigation may disturb social expansion, but it is unable to prevent it. Therefore the individual who tries to interfere, might as well cease bluffing and do, gracefully, that which must be done.

THE ONLY BUSINESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The only business of the adult portion of the human race is teaching.

All other forms of business are subsidiary to this. All our knowledge, our books and libraries, and institutions of learning exist solely for the purpose of giving the babies a better chance.

A man thinks that his main occupation is keeping a hardware store, or running a farm, or managing a bank, or whatever it is that he does to make a living, and acquire a fortune. He is mistaken. His main occupation—that is, the thing that nature has in mind for him—the reason why she made him, and his only excuse for living, is, first, to beget children, and secondly, to train them.

For nature is not much concerned with the individual. After using him for a few years, she throws him away. Nature's chief interest is the race.

"So careful of the type she seems, So careless of the single life." Therefore, any one who is not in some way directly or indirectly engaged in the business of teaching children is superfluous.

No nation has ever given education the attention it deserves. Every nation is entirely too much occupied with adults.

We grown-ups are under the delusion that we are the people that matter, and our concerns are the important ones, and the children are somehow or other to be crowded along till they get ready to get into the Great Game. Just the opposite is the truth. It is the children that matter, and we are here to get them ready. Life itself is a vast getting ready.

Nations spend colossal sums upon wars wholly unnecessary, the result of an unpoliced world. It is said that over 90 per cent of national revenues goes to wars past, present and future. In a properly policed world less than 10 per cent would be needed to keep mankind in order. In an intelligent world—and we are far from that at present—at least 80 per cent of our revenues should be devoted to education.

The school teacher should be the leading citizen of every community. He should be the best paid. His position should be so high that the best minds would aspire to it. When the world grows wise its supreme talent and genius will turn toward teaching, instead of toward hog-sticking, steel-making, or banking.

All of the tremendous problems that stump us at present, whose solution we consider impossible, could be easily solved if we would run them through the schoolhouse—that is, if we would begin by instructing the next generation.

The reason needed reforms are impractical is because of the stupidity of unpreparedness of adult minds. We could easily bring them to pass in about thirty years if we would begin with the child mind.

For instance, the League of Nations, the only rational plan for the removal of the unspeakable pest of war, found itself opposed by the whole mass of long-whiskered prejudice the world over. The trouble was it was presented to adults, who were entirely unfit to receive it.

If the makers of the league had been wise, and had outlined a plan for beginning to teach it in the primary schools, all over the world, with a provision that it should be adopted at the end of a generation—that is, in about thirty years, when the present children have grown up—it would have gone over swimmingly.

In fact, no reform ever succeeds in the generation to which it is proposed. That crop of adults has to be off. It is only the next crop that is qualified to carry on the new idea.

This accounts for the fact that all reforms go in waves, in tidal waves about thirty years apart. The only real occupation for adults is teaching.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE RIGHT WORD SCHOOL

Last week The Right Word discussed and illustrated two features of The Right Word service. The first involves reviews of styles of modern writers, both careless and precise, in order to expose common errors and, in particular, to point out correct modern usage.

The second feature is "The Wrong Righted," wherein, under "The Wrong Word," incorrect diction, locutions and constructions are presented, and, under "The Right Word," these errors are corrected, decisions being made on the bases of authorities and generally understood usage of careful writers.

A third feature is called "Discussion Club." In connection with this department you may write the author of The Right Word for the purpose of getting the opinion of this column or of its readers on any question. There is no more efficient method of learning than that of observation and discussion.

Tomorrow there will be a discussion of the sentence, "It will be better for Mr. Jones and me raised whether 'me' is the subject of 'to talk' or the object of 'for.'" In a recent article The Right Word stated that the "me" under discussion is the subject of "to talk" and is, therefore, in the objective case. E. Adelaide Hahn has raised an issue in the matter.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The virtue of labor is not altogether in the thing accomplished.

It is in the spirit of which labor is a symbol.

The spirit of industry.

For by the spirit of industry man survives and grows.

The spirit of industry in man is the spirit of growth in the tree.

It is in a progress toward fulfillment.

The virtue of the medal on the breast of the hero is not in the metal or ribbon or color or design.

It is in the thing symbolized.

Which is courage.

Honor.

Fidelity.

For it is by these things that the spirit of men survive.

Without them man would revert to the state of the beast.

So the thing symbolized is always greater than the symbol.

And many times we confuse the symbol with the thing symbolized.

And attach a greater importance to the symbol than to the thing symbolized.

The virtue of a feast day or a holiday is not in the fact that there is feast and holiday.

Those are incidental.

The virtue is in the occasion symbolized or commemorated.

The virtue of a spring in the desert is not in the fact that water has sprung up in an unexpected place.

It is in the fact that you may get a drink in time of need.

The commemoration of occasions does two things:

It pays tribute to high spirit.

It affords inspiration for future deeds.

And the latter is the more important.

There are highly practical persons who would do away with holidays and festival occasions.

But these symbolize great deeds and great occasions.

They are times for thoughtfulness.

For a rising above meanness and littleness.

It would be fine if the world of men could live unselfishly every day.

But it is fine if the world of men lives unselfishly even for one or two men.

And without a high inspiration we should none of us live unselfishly at all.

It is well that we have holidays.

For a little time even we approach the unselfishness we should have always.

And without that little time, we should eventually become cold, cruel, selfish and hard.

Sealed Orders—By Richard Burton (1859)

We bear sealed orders o'er Life's stormy sea.

Our haven dim and far;

We can but man the helm right bravely.

Steer by the brightest star.

GLAND MADNESS VS. YOUTH

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

A disgraceful story lies before my eyes.

Perhaps you may disagree with my views; but as I read the story, it seems a madness that men, for money, should encourage such scenes as are described by an eye witness.

If men and women allow youth to pass without taking advantage of its glorious possibilities, will they do better with a false youth, brief and stolen from a helpless animal?

Suppose that a monkey or goat gland can make possible a belated paternity? Will this process shove back the heavy hand of death or place an income in the pockets of the rejuvenated, I mean an income commensurate with the responsibility assumed by the rejuvenated man or woman who undertakes parenthood at an age when grandparenthood should be the normal order of the day?

How much will organized society profit by being cluttered with the babies of those who should have procured babies when youth was crying for youth's prerogatives?

Of course the gland transplanters tell us that renewed youth means renewed earning power. Perhaps — and perhaps not.

It takes more than goat glands and a "virile impulse" to provide for the upbringing and education of a child or children, and it is with this and not with "virile impulses" that we should concern ourselves.

As a money-making proposition the gland business seems to be a gold mine, but as a benefit to society it is a dun failure, not to say a criminal offense.

Do you grasp the idea? If you do, you may also grasp this: The possibility of renewing youth through surgical aid will only add to the army of wild cat sowers and public charges.

WHO SHALL RULE THE SEA?

[Portland Press Herald]

The people of Maine do not believe in scrapping the merchant marine altogether. They know, if other people do not, how important it is for this country to have a merchant marine. They also believe the only sensible thing to do is for the government to grant the subsidy which is required to make the operation of this fleet possible.

Other nations are subsidizing their merchant ships in order to promote their foreign trade. Why shouldn't the United States do the same thing?

TAX ON DOWRIES

[Chicago Tribune]

When the time for rewriting the income tax law comes around congress would do well to insert a special tax on the fortunes of American women married to Europeans.

The marriage markets recognize that American money may purchase baronets, counts, marquises, dukes, and princes of the blood royal on a fairly well established scale of prices.

American money is supporting many ancestral estates and paying millions in taxes to foreign governments. It is even—as in the case of Lord Curzon—supporting statesmen of anti-American bent.

The money of American women married abroad is further used to sway American politics in the direction of the husband's country.

The extent of the influence so exercised is evidenced by the passage by congress and approval by President Harding of the recently enacted "snob law" whereby the American purchasers of European titles are allowed to retain their American citizenship.

A flat surtax of 35 per cent on the incomes of all dowries of American peeresses would not seem excessive.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It is to be regretted that news received by cable is not always accurate. Correspondents explain in private the manner in which they are handicapped. Often they know the truth and dare not send it.

There are some news agencies got to be depended on. They carry matter with small regard for its relation to the facts.

Sir Edward Mackay Edgar, an English financier, is quoted as saying, after a visit to this country, "In all the years I have known America, I have never been so struck as during the past two months, by her prodigality. Before long there will be a smash."

Now, perhaps Sir Edward said this, and perhaps he did not. If he did say it, the explanation may be that his experience at home had made him peculiarly susceptible to impressions received in a visit to a prosperous country where things are being done, where labor is abundant, and the lands are yielding richly.

He concludes that the business of Englishmen is to exploit all the oil, cotton and metal possibilities in the non-American world, and so ultimately be shipping such products to America.

That's all right. Let the English go to it, as the saying is. But if they think, with Sir Edward, that this country is exhausting, or even straining its resources, why, along with the distinguished gentleman, they are mistaken.

There is something peculiarly sad in the tragedy concerning which nothing is known but the fact of the happening. Aviation gives opportunity for such episodes.

Two government flyers "hop off" at San Diego. They have a definite plan for reaching a stated destination. They fade from sight in the distant sky, and never again come to view. Endless the speculations concerning them. Countless the forms of the fate that fancy deems may have overtaken them. But their friends do not know.

According to cabled reports, Bonar Law is having much grief with the unemployed. Labor members have become so embittered that proceedings in parliament degenerate occasionally into the semblance of riot. One of these members told the house:

"We will fight to the death. We will, if necessary, fight on the streets. If you will not give us our rights constitutionally, we will take them unconstitutionally."

That sounds like pretty ugly talk.

When Pacific coast voters were electing certain members of congress to private life, Senator Poinsett of Washington and Representative MacArthur were among the number.

It is not the intention here to rebuke the voters at all, but to call attention to the fact that in these two, the navy, and naval development on the Pacific, lost valuable friends.

M. Clemenceau has delivered his last message to America. He says there will be another, but that his ghost will deliver it.

Ghost messages are not received at par here. Anything purporting to be the spirit of Clemenceau might just as well refrain from coming over. Even sponsored by Conan Doyle, it couldn't get by.

Dispatches tell of a bloodless duel between the president of Uruguay and a politician. Each fired twice, missing with great skill, and war is understood to be averted.

Calls for a new conference of the signatories to the four-power pact are beginning to be suggested.

One reason given is that the terms heretofore agreed upon are not being kept. That would be a poor reason, for the scheme would be akin to that of sending good money after bad, which is not wise policy.

There may be abundant reasons for another conference, but the one stated would hardly be the excluded. Probably it is not a relation of fact, anyhow. Somebody as usual is trying to kick up trouble.

According to a writer of headlines, a woman had been yielding a "strident" gavel in the house, having been called to the chair while the speaker was at lunch.

The qualification seems to be a misfit. A gavel might be noisy or harsh, but for it to be strident would be about as difficult as for it to talk through its nose.

The rainfall throughout this region has been greater than any resident would have ordered had the matter been left to his judgment. However, a very large proportion of acreage is too firmly anchored to be washed away.

Attempts to impeach Daugherty have revealed to the public nothing worth while.

The only real information leaking out is that the committee in charge is getting pretty tired.

In the fact that an American dollar will buy 20,000,000 Russian rubles I see large an argument against the soviet regime as possible to put in words and figures.

Once the ruble was worth an American fifty cents.

The community chest has been found an admirable method of meeting the demands on charity. It makes fair division of total receipts, and in dispensing to the needy, takes care that none is left out in the cold.

To get something "off the chest" is a process often commended. To get some "into your chest" also is good counsel.

The sentence recently meted out in a Pasadena court was "two hundred and fifty dollars fine, or eighty days in jail."

By what process of thought is the conclusion reached that the two courses open to the convicted are in any sense equal as penalties?

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Out in the main office, where the comers, stayers, and go-ers fight a daily battle with life, every one has known that a promotion has been impending for some one. The big idea out there is to get away from the typewriter and the ledger and go on the road. Every man there has asked at some time during the last two weeks:

"Er—er—when does Mr. Callahan leave, sir?"

And when informed that Mr. Callahan's departure for the new job has not been definitely dated, each has wished to be considered an aspirant for Callahan's place. And not one of them has had a word of comfort from me. I haven't been able to make up my mind.

"Why don't you give little Radcliffe a chance?" asked the stenographer.

The idea did not make an enormous hit with me at first. Our line of goods is the most accurate man I ever knew. That is as far as I ever get to it. I'm obliging and genial—after I've taken my morning exercise—and on occasion I can tell a good story. But I am not what might be called a rightfully accurate person.

Whereas Little Radcliffe either may be a human coxy corner jacked with information, like so many of the terrors of this side of the grave, but what information he does carry can be depended on.

It looks as though Radcliffe gets the job. I do not want to put in the next few months explaining to dissatisfied customers that "Our Mr. Hoosis" meant well but was all wrong.

OKLAHOMA IS TO INAUGURATE IN OLD STYLE

Proclamation Is Issued Against Fish Suits and Plug Hats

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 18.—"Dance with yer ma, dance with yer paw and dance with the girl from Arkansas."

"Boys, you're old enough to know, so swing your girl to and fro!"

These and many other quaint "calls" will ring through Oklahoma's statehouse on the nights of January 7 and 8, when Jack Walton, mayor of Oklahoma City, becomes governor of the Sooner state.

Old-fashioned square dances will replace the usual formal ball at Walton's inauguration, he announced. He ran for office on the Democratic ticket and, as the candidate of the "common folks" and he is going to be the "common folks" governor, Walton said.

"No pink teas, fancy balls or other new fangled things for my inaugural celebration," Walton declared. "Blue jeans, hob-nail shoes, calico aprons and sun, bonnets will be 'formal' for the affair."

"No soup and fish suits or plug hats for mine."

"I was the laboring man's candidate and the laboring man and his family are invited to my celebration."

Other than the old-fashioned square dance to be on the two nights, Walton announced, the celebration would include:

An open-air inaugural ceremony so the thousands of "common folks" may see "everything."

A continuous two-day barbecue, menu to include bear meat, venison, buffalo, possum, coon, squirrel, rabbit, beef, mutton, pork, turkey, duck and chicken, to be served with coffee and other old-fashioned trimmings.

Indian games and war dances for which 3,500 blanket Indians will be brought here to stay in a tepee camp on the capitol grounds.

Fiddling, banjo picking and coon-dog contests for state championships.

A gigantic parade to precede the celebration.

Walton will lead the parade, riding "Teddy," famous Indian pony, owned by Theodore Roosevelt in territorial days. The $10,000 saddle belonging to Joe Miller, 101 ranch, will be used for the occasion.

"It's going to be some blowout," Governor Jack declared.

LOVE IS AN AWFUL THING, AT THE GLENDALE

Whether or not you think "Love is an Awful Thing" you will want to see the picture of that name which opened at the Glendale Theatre Sunday. Needless to say this production is comedy. That admirable farceur, Owen Moore, plays the leading role and in the business of driving dull care and the like away he is ably assisted by none other than Douglas Carter, the premier colored comedian of the screen.

The feminine portion of the cast included that darling of the Folies, Kathryn Perry, who in private life is Mrs. Owen Moore. She was selected as the most beautiful girl in New York by a committee of artists headed by Howard Chandler Christy and one look at her is enough to convince the most exacting that for once a prize beauty contest was judged right.

PEARCES ENTERTAIN IN HONOR OF DAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Pearce of 453 West Windsor road entertained Saturday afternoon with a delightful party in honor of the fifth birthday of their daughter, Lassie Pearce.

The house was artistically arrayed in Christmas decorations, using a color scheme of red, white and silver which proved very effective. The chandeliers were shaded with poinsettias and the large dining table was centered with a Jack Horner pie on top of which was a red sleigh, drawn by reindeer. The sleigh was driven by Santa Claus across a snow bank. The pie contained dainty favors for each guest.

There were brightly lighted Christmas trees in both the dining and living rooms and during the afternoon, the children were presented with gifts. The game of pinning the tail on the donkey was played and the first prize of a ball and bat awarded Mickie Beaudine and the second prize of a pencil box went to Lassie Pearce.

The beautiful white birthday cake was decorated with a snow house with Santa Claus coming out the chimney and surrounded by five red candles lighted. At the table where refreshments were served, places were marked with swaggers sticks and nut cups.

Covers were laid for Helen Beaudine, Mickie Beaudine, Billy J. Beaudine, May Judge, Lois Judson, Mary Winn Jones, Margaret Flood, Jene Swagood, David McMaster, Edgar Alyn Warren, Jr., Bobbie Mullen, Weston Masson, Daniel O'Flaherty, Jimmie Flood, David Pearce and Irvin and George Babbit. THE OPEN DOOR IS DR. EDMONDS' SUNDAY TEXT

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached in observation of the entrance upon the twelfth year of his pastorate. In preliminary words he expressed his profound appreciation and regard for the board of elders at his back, and the just estimate of their great work.

His text was taken from Rev. 3:8-11: "I have set before thee an open door; hold that fast while thou hast; that no man take thy crown."

"Two generations after going up to heaven the Lord Jesus Christ visited His beloved John in his last days on the Isle of Patmos. He gave him the vision of the Apocalypse, the outlook of the coming age, and messages to seven representative churches. These messages were intended for the succession of churches on to His second coming. Our text comes from the next to the last of these, and belongs to our period, very close to the end of this age. We should realize that He is still 'walking among the golden candlesticks,' and His 'hold fast' is for this moment, in this time of apostasy."

"Christ in His earth life had called Himself 'the door of the sheep.' 'Door' is very significant. It stands for separation without and within, for security, for hospitality, for liberty. We will look now at some doors of privilege and opportunity."

"Opportunity, never was it so great for service, fruit bearing, usefulness. We are profoundly thankful that God lets us participate with Him. We look back to the beginning of this church. In 1884 was constructed the old building that stands here in the back corner, when this valley was all sage brush and jack rabbits. All honor to those who planted; they were wiser than they knew. During 27 years there were 427 members. Up to this time there have been 1916. During eleven years just past 1922 have been received, by letter 1049, by profession 453. The membership today is 1104. As to opportunity here is the summit even of this the best part of the state."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

By E. R. WAITE, Secretary, Swannock, Oklahoma, Board of Commerce.

THAT every citizen should help to make his home city a brighter, better and busier city.

THAT mud-slinging does much harm to a community.

THAT they discuss most everything in politics but real issues.

THAT what most communities need is more business and less politics.

THAT a community can't be built by politics.

DIETS DAY BY DAY

The young doctor was treating a fever patient in a small town. He found his greatest difficulty in explaining about diets to the wife of his patient.

"Mr. Brown may go on convalescent diet," said the young doctor cheerfully, one morning.

"Shall I order a steak for him, Doctor?" asked the wife.

"Gracious! No. Not at all," said the young doctor.

"You see," he explained, "convalescent patients who have been living solely on fluids must be careful not to resume solid diet too rapidly."

"The recuperation of the digestive organs differs in different persons. Relapses are sometimes caused by indiscretions in the matter of diet. One must get back to solid food gradually."

"Starchy foods," continued the doctor, "during convalescence after fevers and long, tedious illness are useful, especially where there has been loss of weight."

"Usually, a patient subsists upon fluid or liquid diet during the serious stage of illness."

"Fluid diet must consist of acid, starchy and miscellaneous drinks."

"Milk is always good, and it may be flavored with cocoa, chocolate, or meat broth, diluted with a charged water or combined with starchy or strained gruels. Broths, beef juice, beef extract and soups, both clear and cream, if strained, may be included in liquid or fluid diet. Only the white of eggs, for albuminous drinks, is used in liquid diet, unless the doctor orders egg nog."

Mrs. Brown listened attentively, wondering how much of this really important information she would be able to remember.

"Milk and water gruels, milk and cream toast, starchy and meat jellies, ice cream, junket, cornstarch puddings, custards, sherbets, gelatin, whips and souffles come under the heading of the next stage of diet for convalescents," continued the doctor. "This is called soft, or semi-solid, food."

"Then comes solid food. It consists of mushes and gruels, eggs prepared in various ways, all forms of bread, crackers and toast. Butter, olive oil, mayonnaise, meats cooked carefully, chicken, sweetbreads, fish, suitable vegetables and fruits constitute solid diet."

"Then what do you think John can have today, to start with?" asked Mrs. Brown. "He said he was just starving for a baked potato and a steak with onions."

"The doctor smiled. "We can't give him a steak now after four weeks on fluids," she said. "But we will promise him a steak within the week. In the meantime he may have strained cereal with cream, some strips of thin, well-browned toast and a cup of cocoa, or coffee that is half milk. How does that sound, after weeks of milk and soup?"

Mrs. Brown looked doubtful.

"At least," she said, "it has possibilities. A tray, some dishes and a spoon may cheer him a little bit."

PENN STATE TO LEAVE TUESDAY FOR PASADENA

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—With the departure of Penn State tomorrow, the east will be moving in a good sized mass upon California in what has become an established annual invasion.

Three large intersectional games remain to put the shroud on the far western gridiron that was applied to eastern fields several weeks ago.

West Virginia and Gonzaga, the "Notre Dame" of the coast, will furnish the first game at San Diego on Christmas day.

West Virginia is one of the few undefeated teams of the east. The mountaineers scored 232 points and allowed their opponents only 21. Pittsburgh, Washington and Lee and Indiana were their most important victims.

Little is known of Gonzaga in the east but it is becoming prominent in coast football considering that the college has been engaged in intercollegiate competitions for only two years. Charles Dornis, Notre Dame's all-American quarterback in 1913, is the coach and the team is typically Notre Dame, featuring a fast running game and a tendency to the overhead attack.

The student body is about 200 and Dornis had only 75 men in the squad this year. The team established a good record, however, by scoring 199 points against its opponents' 59. Washington State was the only college team to beat it.

Stockton, the Gonzaga back, is said to be one of the best on the coast.

West Virginia looked one in the east, although having very light opposition. If Gonzaga plays like Notre Dame, the mountaineers may be surprised.

Pittsburgh finished with one of the best teams in the east and Stanford will have a big job when they meet at Palo Alto on Dec. 30.

By arranging the game on their regular schedule, Pittsburgh was enabled to almost point for the game and Coach Warner brought the squad along slowly until they were getting better every week.

Southern California ought to beat Penn State when they meet at Pasadena on New Year's day. Penn State slipped badly this year, losing to the Navy and Pennsylvania and escaping from Syracuse with a scoreless tie. Southern California, the great California team to a 12 to 0 score and if that means anything, Penn State will have a job.

THE WORTH-WHILE CADET SENDS A LETTER TO SECRETARY DENBY

EDDIE DENBY,
Secretary of the Navy,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sec:

I have read with great interest in the newspapers the reports of the astounding discovery made by you in Philadelphia after the Army-Navy football game, to wit, that students, flushed with the victory or sorrowed by defeat, sometimes go so far as to drink alcoholic liquors.

I never believed such a thing could be true. All my friends who have attended football games in all parts of the United States, including the Yale-Harvard-Princeton series, say they never heard of such an occurrence after any of these games, and I am as horrified as you are to find that any student at any institution could so far forget himself as to come from the chill and the thrill of a football game and let anything like liquor cross his lips.

Never at New Haven, I am sure, has a student ever been drunk after a football contest, nor at Princeton. As for Harvard, it is a well-known fact that no matter how enthusiastic or wild the students get after a football contest they do nothing to give vent to their emotions other than to go to an exclusive tea room and indulge in a furious candy-pulling bee.

Way back in Heffelfinger and Hinkey's time at Yale, after a wonderful victory over Harvard, some Yale men so forgot themselves as to walk into Hughie Reynolds' bar and ask for some beer and crackers, but some old grads who were there restrained them by a simple warning that they must not thus disgrace the fair name of Yale, to say nothing of God and country. All then adjourned to the side room for hot chocolate.

Before writing further maybe I ought to explain that I am an Annapolis man myself. In fact, I am. I think the only cadet who kept the thought of the institution uppermost and never took a drink while in Philadelphia.

Naturally, I felt the emotions experienced by every cadet at the stirring football game and I felt as sorrowful as the next man over our defeat. But did I go to a hotel and resort to vile alcohol? Did I resort to even two drinks or three? I did not. I am made of sterner stuff, the stuff that great future admirals and stirring naval heroes are made of (as you will admit), and I walked directly from the arena to a confectionery store and lulled my emotions by buying six large orange and vanilla lollypops.

What was the result? Before I had eaten five of them I had myself under complete control. I had lost all sense of sorrow over the defeat of my team, and my one desire was to fall into line and help my cadets spell "U. S." against the greensward, for the Pathe Weekly.

It would have been the same had my team won. It might have taken a few more lollypops or perhaps a bar of molasses-nut, but I would have remained a credit to the navy.

My purpose in writing this letter, my dear secretary, is to impress upon you that there is one cadet at Annapolis who is the sort of youth to be trusted to uphold the best traditions of the navy as they were upheld by Farragut and John Paul Jones and Perry and Dewey. I am he of whom I am speaking.

Do not be downhearted, dear secretary. Let not the horrendous realization that Annapolis students sipped of the grape after the Army-Navy game discourage you and cause you to despair of ever build-

THE POWER IN A NAME, TOLD BY DR. FUNK

"The Power in a Name" was the subject of the sermon by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran Church Sunday morning. Text, Acts, 4:12, "For there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

"As Peter and John were about to enter the temple at the gate called Beautiful, they were accosted by a beggar who asked them for an alms," said Dr. Funk. "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I unto thee: In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth rise up and walk. And the record is that the lame man entered the temple with them, walking and leaping and praising God."

"What wonder that the people were amazed at what had been done! But on the morrow Peter and John were brought before the rulers, who demanded of them, 'By what power, or by what name, have you done this?' They supposed that the voice and power of Jesus had been silenced forever. But Peter boldly declares: 'Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God hath raised from the dead, even by Him doth this man stand before you whole.'"

"Moreover, the wonder working power of Jesus is revealed to every one. Henry Moorhouse, a noted minister, was a guest at the home of some friends when a child of the household entered his room and said: 'Mr. Moorhouse, I want to be a Christian.' 'Well, you may,' said he, 'for it is very easy.' He had her read the third and fourth verses of the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, asking her to change the pronouns 'we' and 'our' to make it personal. So she began to read, 'Surely he hath borne my griefs, and carried my sorrows. . . . But he was wounded for my transgressions; he was bruised for my iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.' 'Yes, it is just that easy.'"

ORIENTAL MOUSSE

Mix four tablespoons Canton ginger with four tablespoons preserved kumquats, four tablespoons orange juice, and let stand two hours. Soak one-fourth teaspoon gelatin in five teaspoons of water. Make a custard of one cup milk, five tablespoons sugar and a little salt. When custard is smooth add gelatin and strain into a cold pan set in ice. When mixture begins to stiffen fold in one-half pint of whipping cream and rest of mixture. Pour in mold and pack in ice and salt.
